

Contributors

DR. ALEXANDRE Y. MANSOUROV. Dr. Alexandre Y. Mansourov is an associate professor at the APCSS. He is a specialist in Northeast Asian security, politics, and economics, focusing primarily on the Korean peninsula. Dr. Mansourov received his Ph.D. in political science from Columbia University, New York. He co-edited a book titled “The North Korean Nuclear Program: Security, Strategy, and New Perspectives from Russia,” and published numerous book chapters and academic articles on Korean and Northeast Asian affairs.

DR. BRUCE P. CHADWICK. Dr. Chadwick is a specialist in information technology, governance, and sustainable development. He has a Ph.D. in political science from Columbia University (2000), where he conducted extensive research on the process of democratization and its effects on a country’s circulation of knowledge and attitudes to environment-development trade-offs. More recently, he is the team leader of Winrock International’s initiative on “Knowledge Technologies for Sustainable Development,” which looks at the issues and processes by which communities in developing countries can benefit from access to information technologies and information services. Winrock International is a nonprofit organization that offers technical assistance in developing countries, particularly in the areas of agricultural and rural development. Dr. Chadwick has held fellowships from the National Science Foundation, the Institute for the Study of World Politics, and was a Rockefeller Visiting Scholar in the Humanities in Rio de Janeiro.

DR. PETER J. HAYES. Dr. Hayes is executive director of the Nautilus Institute for Security and Sustainable Development, a non-governmental, policy-oriented research and advocacy group based in Berkeley, California. He graduated with a degree in history from the University of Melbourne. He has a doctorate from the Energy and Resources Group at the University of California at Berkeley. Professionally active as an environment and energy consultant in developing countries (working for United Nations Environment Programme, Asian Development Bank, World Bank, Canadian International Development Research Council, U.S. Agency for International Development, United Nations Development Programme), he also writes widely about security affairs in the Asia-Pacific region. He was first executive director of the Environment Liaison Centre in Nairobi, Kenya in 1974-76. He was deputy director of the Commission for the Future for Australia from 1989-1991. He has visited the DPRK seven times. He is a member of the Pacific Council on International Policy, the western partner of the Council on Foreign Relations; and the U.S. Committee of the Council for Security Cooperation in the Asia Pacific. He was awarded a MacArthur Fellowship in 2000. His publications include: co-author, "American Lake: Nuclear Peril in the Pacific" (Penguin, 1987; Asahi Shimbun, 1987); author, Pacific Powderkeg: American Nuclear Dilemmas in Korea (Free Press, New York, 1990; Han-ul Press, Seoul, 1991); co-author and editor, The Global Greenhouse Regime: Who Pays?, (UN University Press/ Earthscan Press London); co-author and editor of Space Power, Booster Rockets and ICBM Proliferation, (Westview, 1996); and co-author and editor, Peace and Security In Northeast Asia and the Nuclear Issue, (MA Sharpe, 1996).

DR. LEE, HYUNG-SEOG. Dr. Lee is a special advisor to the director of Korea Defense Intelligence Agency and North Korean economy analyst in Seoul, Korea. His primary focuses are in the areas of peace science, regional science and economic development policy. Prior to his current position at KDIA he was a senior researcher, Policy Development & Planning Group, POSCO Research Institute (POSRI), Seoul Korea; researcher at the Yonsei Institute for Korean Unification Studies, Yonsei University, Seoul Korea. He was a teaching and research assistant with the Department of Economics and East Asia Program, Cornell University and a research assistant with the Division of Industrial Organization and International Trade, Korea Development Institute (KDI), Seoul, Korea. Dr. Lee has published many research papers in areas such as peace economics and economic cooperation between the two Koreas. Dr. Lee earned his Bachelor of Arts degrees in anthropology in 1988 and in economics in 1990 from Seoul National University, Seoul, Korea. He received his Master of Arts degree in economics in 1995 and his Ph.D. in economics from Cornell in 1997.

MR. LAWRENCE J. HO. Mr. Ho is a Chinese-Canadian attorney based in Vancouver, British Columbia. His legal practice revolves around providing strategic counsel to philanthropic families/foundations and various non-profit organizations and non-governmental organizations (NGOs). He serves as the executive director for the Chang Family Foundation established by the Chinese-American tennis player, Michael Chang. He also works with other families, primarily in the Pacific Northwest, with significant philanthropic portfolios. He has served various Canadian and international organizations such as the BC Cancer Foundation, Trinity Western University, and World Vision, and others in networking them within the Asian and international communities. Mr. Ho taught International Trade and Comparative Legal Systems at China's largest law school, China University of Politics and Law, in Beijing (1993-94). Mr. Ho holds a Masters of Law in International Trade/Development and International Human Rights from the London School of Economics (LSE). He also has law degrees from the University of Windsor in Canada and the University of Detroit. He received a Bachelor of Arts degree in American Literature and History at the University of Toronto. He is qualified to practice law in both British Columbia and Ontario. In relation to public policy and philanthropic/NGO work, he has consulted/provided information for organizations such as the International Monetary Fund, World Bank, UNDP, UN-WHO, UN-world Food Program, the Canadian Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade, and the U.S. State Department.

RETIRED GENERAL JAE CHANG KIM. General Kim served as the chairman, the Defense System Reform Committee, Ministry of National Defense from November 1999 to December 2001. He graduated from the Korean Military Academy in 1962 and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Republic of Korea Army. He had served in the Korean Army for 32 years when he retired from active service in April 1994. His major assignments include commanding general of 9th Infantry Division, director of operations in Joint Chiefs of Staff, commanding general of 6th Corps, assistant minister for policy, vice chairman of Joint Chiefs of Staff, and deputy commander in chief of Korea and United States Combined Forces Command. He graduated from the College of Engineering, Seoul National University, majoring in electronics, and received his Bachelor of Engineering degree in 1966. He also graduated from the United States Naval Postgraduate School, majoring in operations research and system analysis, and received his Master of Science in March 1976. After his retirement, he studied in the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy in Boston, majoring in international affairs, and received his Master of Law and Diplomacy degree in 1998 and finished the course work and received his Ph.D. in 1999.

DR. JIN KI HONG. Dr. Hong is the Director of the Center for Information System Studies, Korea Institute for Defense Analyses, Ministry of National Defense, Seoul, Korea. Previously, he has served as the chief, electronic data processing system, Korea Air Force Logistics Command; the chief, data processing section, deputy of C4, Korea Air Force Headquarters; the chief for computer programming, data processing center, Korea Air Force; the chief, data processing center, Korea Air War College; the officer for IT education, data processing center, Korea Air Force; the officer for computer programming, data processing center, Korea Air Force; the commander for air combat maneuvering instrumentation company, Korea Air Force and as the officer for computer programming, computer center, the Korea Ministry of National Defense. Dr. Hong received his bachelor's degree from the Korea Air Force Academy in 1975, his Master's degree from the Korea National Defense College in 1987, and his Ph.D. from the University of Wyoming in 1996.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL TAE-HWAN KWON. Lieutenant Colonel Kwon is currently serving as an associate professor, weapon systems at the National Defense University. Previously, he was a professor at the Air Force Academy and at the Korea National Defense University teaching C4ISR Systems, Information Warfare, Defense Science & Technology in Policy Program. Lt Col Kwon is a graduate of the Air Force Academy. He received a Bachelor of Science degree in Electronic Engineering in 1979 and a Master of Science degree in Electronic Engineering in 1982. He earned his Ph.D. in Electrical and Computer Engineering in 1990 from Oregon State University, Corvallis.

COMMANDER KIM YOUNGKIL. Commander Kim currently works at the Program Office of Automated Systems Acquisition, ROK Navy Headquarters where two acquisition programs, Korean Navy Tactical Data System Version 2 and Navy Tactical C4I System (NTC4I), are managed. He graduated from the ROK Naval Academy in 1976, and received his bachelor's and master's degrees in industrial engineering from Seoul National University in 1980 and 1983. He received his Ph.D. degree in industrial engineering from Texas Tech University in 1989. Dr. Kim's has held positions with Systems Analysis Division as an analyst, Navy Sea Systems Command as a project management officer, and Korea Institute of Defense Analysis as a researcher. In his position in the Navy Sea Systems Command, he was detached to then NISE East, St. Inigoes, Maryland (now a part of SPAWAR), as a program management officer for Korean Navy Tactical Support Center System to support our P-3C maritime patrol aircraft operations, which inspired him to get more insights in C4I systems and IT technology. His major interests are command and control systems, especially in architectural approach and measures of effectiveness modeling. He has published a book titled C4I Theory and Practices: Concepts, Models, Architectures, and Design, and is currently preparing another book titled C4ISR Force Effectiveness Analysis: Modeling Approaches.

COMMANDER GYOO-PIL CHUNG. Commander Chung graduated from ROK Naval Academy in April 1980 and received a Master of Science degree in Electrical and Computer Engineering from the U.S. Naval Post Graduate School in September 1985. After U.S. Naval Post Graduate School, he worked at the Bureau of COMM ROKN

HQTRS for Korean Naval Tactical Data System Project, Bureau of Acquisition, ROK MND and CINCROKFLT etc.

COLONEL SUNG-PYO HONG. Colonel Hong is currently assigned as a professor in airpower strategy at the National Defense University, Republic of Korea. Previous assignments include the Revolution in Military Affairs Group, Defense Reform Committee, Ministry of National Defense (1999-2002) and the Military Strategy Division, Joint Chiefs of Staff (1998-1999). He has many published writings on national security, war, doctrine and military strategy. Colonel Hong is a graduate of the Air Force Academy. He earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in Russian and a Master of Arts degree in politics from the Hanguk University of Foreign Studies, and his Ph.D. in politics from The University of Hull (UK).

MR. JOSEPH S. BERMUDEZ JR. Mr. Bermudez is an internationally recognized analyst, author, and lecturer on North Korean defense and intelligence affairs and ballistic missile development in the Third World. He is currently a senior analyst for Jane's Information Group and IntelCenter. He has authored five books and more than 100 articles, reports, and monographs on these subjects. His two most recent books: Shield of the Great Leader: The Armed Forces of North Korea and North Korean Special Forces -- 2nd Edition are considered by many to be the definitive "open source" works on the subjects and have been translated into Korean and Japanese. His forthcoming book Scud: Weapon of Terror, promises to follow this tradition. Mr. Bermudez has lectured extensively in the academic and government environments, both in the U.S. and the Republic of Korea. He has also testified before Congress as a subject matter expert concerning North Korea's ballistic missile and nuclear, chemical and biological warfare programs and ballistic missile development in the Third World.

DR. C. KENNETH QUINONES. Dr. Quinones is currently the director, Korean peninsula programs for the American Research Center for Asia and the Pacific. Previously he was the director of Northeast Asia projects for Mercy Corps, a non-governmental organization engaged in humanitarian assistance around the world, and coordinated several projects that advocate and demonstrate innovative approaches to address the underlying causes of hunger and illness in North Korea. He was the first U.S. diplomat to visit North Korea, and served as a member of the U.S. negotiating team that formulated the 1994 U.S.-DPRK Agreed Framework. He was a representative of both the Department of State to the U.S. Nuclear Spent Fuel Team at North Korea's nuclear research center, and the DOD negotiating team which reached agreement with the Korean People's Army in 1996 to commence joint U.S.-DPRK recovery of U.S. soldiers' remains still in North Korea. He holds a Ph.D. in History and East Asia Languages (Korean, Japanese and Chinese) from Harvard University. As a scholar, he authored, North Korea's Nuclear Threat – Off the Record Memories, published in Seoul and Tokyo, plus more than twenty articles in scholarly journals in the U.S., Korea, and Japan about Korean history and contemporary security issues.

DR. KONGDAN O. HASSIG (Dr. Katy Oh). Dr. Oh is a research staff member at the Institute for Defense Analyses and a non-resident senior fellow at the Brookings Institution. She is a member of the Korea task force of the Council on Foreign Relations, the Korea working group of the United States Institute of Peace, the Council on U.S.-Korea Security Studies, and the co-founder and co-director of The Korea Club in Washington, D.C. She received her Bachelor of Arts degree at Sogang University and her Master of Arts degree at Seoul National University. She subsequently earned a Master of Arts degree and Ph.D. in Asian Studies at the University of California, Berkeley. Her recent publications include Korea Briefing 2000-2001: First Steps Toward Reconciliation and Reunification (Co-editor, M. E. Sharpe and Asia Society, 2002), Terrorism Eclipses the Sunshine Policy: Inter-Korean Relations and the United States (Asia Society, 2002), Northeast Asian Strategic Security Environment Study (Institute for Defense Analyses, 2001), and North Korea through the Looking Glass (Brookings, 2000).

DR. HYUNCHUL CHUNG. Dr. Chung has served as a researcher at Management Research Lab for Korea Telecom since 1992. He is currently working on developing competition strategies in extremely competitive Korean telecommunications market. He graduated from Hanyang University, Seoul, Korea, with a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration, earned his Master of Business Administration from George Washington University in the United States and his Ph.D. in management, majoring in finance, from McGill University in Canada.

DR. GEORGY D. TOLORAYA. Dr. Toloraya graduated from the Moscow University of International Relations in 1978, received his Ph.D. (1984) and Doctor of Economy (1994) from USSR/Russian Academy of Science. He worked for the Russian Ministry of Foreign Trade, Russian Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Institute of International Economic and Political Studies, Russian Ministry of Foreign Affairs (since 1991). Currently he is the Deputy Director-General of First Asian Department of Ministry of Foreign Affairs. In 1978-1980 and 1983-1987, he was stationed in the Russian Embassy in DPRK (North Korea) and in 1993-1998 he was the Minister of Russian Embassy to the Republic Of Korea. Dr. Toloraya authored several books and numerous articles on Korean affairs and Asian cooperation. He concurrently conducts research as a fellow of the Institute of World Economy and International Relations in Moscow and teaches at the Moscow University of International Relations.

MR. SCOTT A. SNYDER. Mr. Snyder is representative to the Korea Office of The Asia Foundation in Seoul, where he directs a program focused primarily on: (1) Strengthening South Korea's international relations, (2) Supporting non-governmental efforts to increase women's political participation and, (3) Supporting training efforts for North Koreans in the areas of law, business, health, and agriculture. He is an active writer and commentator on Asian security issues with a special focus on Korea. Previously, he was an Asia specialist in the Research and Studies Program of the U.S. Institute of Peace, and was a recipient of the Abe Fellowship, a research program administered by the Social Sciences Research Council. His book, titled Negotiating on the Edge: North Korean Negotiating Behavior, was published by USIP Press in 1999. Prior to his work at the U.S. Institute of Peace, he was the acting director of the contemporary affairs department of the Asia Society. He received his Bachelor of Arts from Rice University and his Master of Arts from the Regional Studies East Asia Program at Harvard University. He was the recipient of a Thomas G. Watson Fellowship in 1987-88 and attended Yonsei University in South Korea.

DR. J. TIM BEAL. After completing a Master of Arts with honors in modern Chinese studies at the University of Edinburgh, Dr. Beal went on to do a Diploma in business administration followed by a Ph.D. on China's terms of trade. He has taught on subjects ranging from Chinese politics to international marketing at universities in Britain, Japan, China and New Zealand. He is a senior lecturer in the School of Marketing and International Business, Victoria University of Wellington and was the foundation director of the university's Centre for Asia/Pacific Law and Business (CAPLAB), 1992-98. He has a particular interest in North Korea, which he has visited twice. Dr. Beal is a co-editor of Pyongyang Report, maintains the website: <http://www.vuw.ac.nz/~caplabtb/dprk/>, and is secretary of the NZ-DPRK Society. He is currently writing a book titled North Korea's Arduous March for Pluto Press of London.

Selected References

“White Paper: Internet Korea 2003,” National Computerization Agency, Ministry of Information and Communication, Seoul, ROK, July 2003

“Changing Korea with E-Government,” Ministry of Information and Communication, Seoul, ROK, pp. 1-19, at www.egov.go.kr.

“E-Korea Vision 2006: The Third Master Plan for Informatization Promotion (2002-2006),” Ministry of Information and Communication, Seoul, ROK, April 2002

“Broadband in Korea: Korea Information Infrastructure,” National Computerization Agency, Ministry of Information and Communication Seoul, ROK, June 2002

“Cyber Korea 21: Korea’s Vision for a Knowledge Based Information Society.” Ministry of Information and Communications, Seoul, ROK, March 1999

“The Realities of Informationization in the First Quarter of 2004,” public opinion survey, Ministry of Information and Communication and Korea Network Information Center, Seoul, ROK, June 2004

“E-Government in Korea,” National Computerization Agency, MIC, Seoul, ROK, December 2002

“The Road to US$20,000 GDP/capita: IT 8-3-9 Strategy,” Ministry of Information and Communication, Seoul, ROK, March 2004

Information and Communication Industry Statistics Reports for 2000, 2001, 2002, and 2003, Korea Association of Information and Telecommunication, Seoul, ROK, December 2000, December 2001, December 2002, December 2003.

Research on the Trend of Major Information and Communication Items, Korea Association of Information and Telecommunication, Seoul, ROK, February 2001.

“IT Industry Outlook of Korea 2002,” Korea Information Society Development Institute, Seoul, ROK, December 2002

“IT Industry Outlook of Korea 2003,” Korea Information Society Development Institute, Seoul, ROK, December 2003

“IT Industry Outlook of Korea 2004,” Korea Information Strategy Development Institute, Seoul, ROK, July 2004

“Survey on Current Trends in the IT Industry,” Korea Association of Information and Telecommunication, Seoul, ROK, August 2002

“The Defense White Paper 2000,” Part Three, ROK Ministry of National Defense, Seoul, ROK, 2000

“Military Transformation: A Strategic Approach,” Office of Force Transformation, Office of the Secretary of Defense, Pentagon, Washington, D.C., Fall 2003

“Creating a Decisive War-fighting Advantage,” Director, Force Transformation, Office of the Secretary of Defense, Pentagon, Washington, D.C., Winter 2003

“North Korea Development Report 2002/2003,” Choong Yong Ahn, ed., Korea Institute for International Economic Policy, Seoul, ROK, August 22, 2003

James Larson, Telecommunications Revolution in Korea, Hong Kong: Oxford University Press (China), 1995

Tim Kelly, Vanessa Grey, and Michael Minges, “Broadband Korea: Internet Case Study,” International Telecommunication Union, March 2003

Ha Ki-seok, “Korea Wireless Services 2004-2008 Forecast and Analysis: 2003 Year-End Review,” IDC Korea, Seoul, ROK, June 2004, at <http://www.idckorea.com/>

Kim Deok-hyun, “Telecom Industry Undergoes Revolutionary Change in Two Decades,” Korea Times, Seoul, November 22, 2002

Weingartner, Eric, “NGO Contributions to the DPRK Development,” North Pacific Policy Papers, Institute of Asian Research, UBC: Vancouver, Canada, No. 7

L. Gordon Flake and Scott Snyder, eds., Paved with Good Intentions: The NGO Experience in North Korea, Westport, CT: Praeger, 2003

Oh, Kongdan and Ralph C. Hassig, North Korea Through the Looking Glass, Washington, D.C.: The Brookings Institution, 2000

Beal, Tim, (Beal 2001c) "Information and Communications Technologies in the two Koreas: Contrasts, Commonalities, Challenges," Global Economic Review, Vol. 30, No. 4, 2001, 51-67

Beal, Tim, (Beal 2002a) "Digital Divide on the Korean Peninsula: Constructive Engagement Offers Solutions," Institute for Korean-American Studies, ICAS Special Contribution No. 2002-0218-TxB, 10 June 2002, posted at <http://www.icasinc.org/lectures/beal1.html>

Bermudez, Joseph S., Shield of the Great Leader: The Armed Forces of North Korea, Sydney: Allen & Unwin, 2001

Hwang, Eui-Gak, The Korean Economies: A Comparison of North and South, Oxford: Clarendon Press; New York: Oxford University Press, 1993

Eberstadt, Nicholas, The End of North Korea, Washington, D.C.: American Enterprise Institute, 1999

Moltz, James Clay and Alexandre Mansourov, eds., The North Korean Nuclear Program: Security, Strategy, and New Perspectives from Russia, New York and London: Routledge, 1999

Noland, Marcus and C. Fred. Bergsten, Avoiding the Apocalypse: Economic Turmoil on the Korean Peninsula, Washington, D.C.: Institute of International Economic, 2000

Hertz, J.C., "The Bandwidth Capital of the World," Wired Magazine. October 2002. Web version available at: <http://www.wired.com/wired/archive/10.08/korea.html>

Kim Sang Taek, “North-South Korean Economic Cooperation in Telecommunications,” in eds. Choi et al, Perspectives on Korean Unification and Economic Integration, Cheltenham: Edgar Elgar, 2001, pp. 88-107

Nam Woo-Suk, “Current Status of Inter-Korean Economic Cooperation in the IT Field: Tasks and Future Outlook,” KOTRA website <http://www.kotra.or.kr/>, May 25, 2001

Nam Woo-Suk, “North Korea’s IT Industry,” KOTRA website <http://www.kotra.or.kr/>, January 3, 2001

“e-Japan Strategy 2001,” IT Strategic Headquarters, Office of the Prime Minister, Tokyo, Japan, <http://www.kantei.go.jp/>, January 2001

“e-Japan: Priority Policy Program – 2002,” IT Strategic Headquarters, Office of the Prime Minister, Tokyo, Japan, <http://www.kantei.go.jp/>, June 18, 2002

“e-Japan: Priority Policy Program – 2003,” IT Strategic Headquarters, Office of the Prime Minister, Tokyo, Japan, <http://www.kantei.go.jp/>, June 2003

“e-Japan Acceleration Strategy 2004,” IT Strategic Headquarters, Office of the Prime Minister, Tokyo, Japan, <http://www.kantei.go.jp/>, June 2004

“Japan – ROK / ROK – Japan Information Technology (IT) Cooperation Initiative,” Office of the Prime Minister, Tokyo, Japan, <http://www.kantei.go.jp/>, September 23, 2000

